"All that a university or final highest school can do for us, is still but what the first school began doing,—teach us to read. We learn to read, in various languages, in various sciences; we learn the alphabet and letters of all manner of books. But the place where we are to get knowledge, even theoretic knowledge, is the books themselves!"

--Carlyle.

Men are four:

He who knows not and knows not he knows not,
he is a fool--shun him;

He who knows not and knows he knows not,
he is simple---teach him;

He who knows and knows not he knows,
he is asleep--wake him;

He who knows and knows he knows,
he is wise---follow him!

--Arabian proverb by Lady Burton.

A Spring Grawl

If there comes a little thaw
Still the air is chill and raw,
Here and there a patch of snow,
Dirtier than the ground below,
Dribbles down a marshy flood;
Ankle-deep you stick in mud
In the meadows while you sing
"This is Spring".

When Spring comes back to England
And crowns her brows with May,
Round the merry moonlit world
She goes the greenwood way:
She throws a rose to Italy,
A fleur-de-lys to France;
But round her regal morris-ring
The seas of England dance.

"I wish the commencement orators were telling the young people that their first duty is to be a work of art, to have deep meanings, to have the distinction of style, to be in unity and in harmony with themselves, to have rhythm and form, to make hearts ache with their beauty. Such a program would keep the young fully occupied. They might fail in it, dear fellow-elders, for the same reason we did; because it is long and hard, this art, and life is short. But if any orator talks this way, encourage him; and if any school or college educates to this definition of life, send America's children there, to enter the course in the primary department."—John Erskine in the Century Magazine for June, 1926.

What a Good Book Really Is.

Presidents of colleges may hold a different opinion, but, as we see it, there are only three really great universities: first, our work; second, the people with whom we associate; and third, books.

A member of our organization who was in Cleveland recently came upon this tribute to a book on the bulletin in the Cleveland Public Library:

"play is a pastime
Work is a satisfaction
Food is an essential
Sleep is a remedy
A friend is a pleasure
and
A book is all five."

—Lockwood, Greene's "Engineer"

Reading is to the mind, what exercise is to the body. As by the one health is preserved, strengthened, and invigorated: by the other, virtue (which is the health of the mind) is kept alive, cherished, and confirmed.
